
New Website

Posted by xpy001 - 2007/08/28 22:05

I don't see a contact us link anywhere.

Do you plan to offer products for sale or an online catalog for viewing your inventory?

=====

Re:New Website

Posted by Lance Armstrong - 2007/09/18 03:27

Really dig the web-site!! When did Kelsey become so photogenic (staff picture)? that must be his blue steel!!!;

=====

Re:New Website

Posted by lincoln - 2007/09/21 04:19

Thanks for the props. Kelsey is not really human, he is a alien. And his new look it fierce!

=====

Re:New Website

Posted by lincoln - 2007/09/21 04:21

I will add a contact page ASAP.

Sorry for the slow response! We will be adding more product pages and are considering adding a cart so you can buy online. Is that something you want? Do you here in Springfield?

Thanks for your comment!

=====

Re:New Website

Posted by xpy001 - 2007/09/21 16:28

Thanks for the reply. I live in Strafford and work in Springfield. I have been to your new shop a couple of times now. It's really nice and everyone is very helpful.

An online catalog would be extremely helpful. I am totally interested in shopping online. Saves a ton of time and provides an opportunity to buy online and pickup in the store during a lunch hour etc... Specifically with parts and accessories.

Bikes usually have to be seen or tested in person, but a comprehensive collection and online catalog of your in stock bikes would be a great shopping tool as well.

The "other guys" have sites with some info, but nothing with an actual product catalog which can be frustrating when you are looking for something specific. Consequently I have passed up going to the bike shop because I didn't have time to run around and see what was available and wound up shopping online.

As an extension to your site (basically a 2nd website setup with the cart and color coded to match your current layout. Seems fairly common to have a link like "visit our online store" which links to another site owned by the same company) you could always use a free shopping cart like oscommerce which is a great cart included with every linux hosting account I have seen so far. It is super easy to manage. I run 2 sites with oscommerce now and it has proven to be a great solution.

Hope this helps.

=====

